Potential Water Storage Sites on Arizona State Trust Land

POTENTIAL SITES IDENTIFIED BY THE ARIZONA DEPARTMENT OF WATER RESOURCES AND THE ARIZONA STATE LAND DEPARTMENT, 2021

I. BACKGROUND

In 2016, the Arizona State Legislature passed SB 1399, directing the State Land Commissioner and the Director of the Department of Water Resources to work together to develop a report that identifies potential water storage sites on State Trust land by December 31, 2017. Specifically, the legislation required the agencies to "[d]evelop a plan to create additional water storage in this state that includes a preliminary investigation of acceptable sites to construct new water storage facilities on State Trust land and the identification of the six most potentially acceptable sites." In addition, the legislation stated that the potential water storage sites identified "may be water storage facilities on the earth's surface or underground storage facilities as defined in section 45-802.01, Arizona Revised Statutes."

Subsequent to the passage of SB 1399 and approval by the Governor on May 11, 2016, staff from the Arizona State Land Department (ASLD) and the Arizona Department of Water Resources (ADWR) began a series of meetings for the purpose of completing the required evaluation.

ADWR began the initial identification of potential storage sites, which were further refined and prioritized by ASLD. The initial site identification netted sites in nearly every groundwater basin and watershed in the State, including the Salt and Verde River system, Little Colorado River, Gila River, San Pedro River and the Santa Cruz River. More than 21 surface storage sites and 331 underground storage sites were initially identified by ADWR. To meet the criteria in the legislation, ASLD selected and prioritized six sites —four potential surface water dam/reservoir sites and two potential underground storage facility sites —for the final report. That report was issued in 2017.

This report, issued in response to HB 2249 state lands; leases; renewal applications, enacted in 2021 (laws 2021, chapter 33), focuses specifically on underground storage sites and provides the full complement of potential underground storage sites originally identified in the preliminary analysis completed by ADWR in 2017. The analysis does not prioritize the potential sites or limit them.

II. POTENTIAL UNDERGROUND STORAGE SITES

A. METHODOLOGY

For this report and the report issued in 2017, the methodology was the same. Potential underground storage sites located along streams that cross State Land parcels that overlie basin-fill or local alluvial stream deposits were evaluated on a statewide basis. In some cases, factors such as proximity of potential sites to potential places of recovery and use and/or multiplicity of potential sites located on the same stream were used to eliminate isolated or potentially redundant sites. Sites located along canals, near the Colorado River, and in areas with many existing USF sites were also eliminated.

B. IDENTIFICATION OF POTENTIALLY ACCEPTABLE UNDERGROUND STORAGE SITES

ADWR identified 331 potential underground storage sites (Figure 1). ADWR made no prioritization of potential storage sites regarding locations within or outside Active Management Areas (AMAs) or Irrigation Non-Expansion Areas (INAs), as protections for such stored water is limited in either location. ADWR did not attempt to further refine the list of potential options or prioritize sites, recognizing that local stakeholders are far better positioned to evaluate the opportunities available to them. The full list of potential sites is detailed in Table 1.

III. CHALLENGES

1. Consistency with Arizona Enabling Act, Constitution, and Statutes

Any use of State Trust land for water storage purposes must be done consistent with Arizona laws requiring that the Trust be compensated adequately for that use, whether via a land sale (by auction), a short-term lease (< 10 years), or long-term lease (>10 years).

2. Ownership and Land Use

This study assumes that any potential facility identified in this preliminary study would be owned and operated by an entity that is not ADWR or ASLD. Neither ADWR nor ASLD is capable of owning, operating, or maintaining a water storage facility. Also, any existing land use or leases with ASLD which could impact underground storage activities should be considered.

3. Construction costs

It is likely that the cost of building any type of storage facility would be significant. ADWR is not engaged in the practice of constructing water storage projects and therefore is unable to accurately estimate the cost of building any of the potential facilities identified herein.

4. Surface Water Rights

Locating a surface water impoundment on or adjacent to an existing watercourse in Arizona is likely to encounter significant questions or conflict regarding the potential impacts to existing water rights or water right claims.

5. Access

This preliminary analysis did not include an examination of any access issues that might pertain to the identified potential sites, nor did it examine any potential surrounding landowner conflicts. In most instances, legal access would need to be obtained, roads built, power provided, etc.

6. Recovery

This preliminary analysis did not include an examination of how recovery of stored water might occur.

7. Federal and other permitting

Constructing, operating, and maintaining a water storage facility of any kind will require permits and approvals that are beyond the scope of this document.

IV. CONCLUSION

ADWR has provided this preliminary analysis of potential sites for water storage facilities, as required by laws 2021, chapter 33. As noted throughout, this analysis is a preliminary identification of potentially acceptable sites. It is not a recommendation or endorsement of any of the identified potentially acceptable sites, as there are numerous challenges that require further contemplation, many of which have yet to be identified, as well as engineering studies, environmental analyses, cultural resource analyses, and other examinations that will need to be carefully considered prior to moving forward.
